Stony Stratford and the Coaching Trade At its peak, Stony Stratford had 30 or more stage-coaches per day passing through the town, all of which required servicing with food, horses and accommodation. Inns thrived, and as the coaches pulled into the town, the Ostler from the designated Inn would take care of the horses, providing hay, food, water, stabling and arranging any necessary blacksmith work.

Stony Stratford - General History of the Town

Stony Stratford has had many royal visitors in the past, and was the location for one of the Eleanor Crosses, which stood in the High Street not far from The Old George. It was a monument to the great love between King Edward I and Queen Eleanor.

The first car I remember in Stony Stratford was Colonel Bull's and his was the first registration in Buckinghamshire, BH43. He had a chauffeur and they used to sit up there, four seats, one for the doctor and two at the back, no cover, just an open carriage and wheel was big and the driver used to sit up straight and drive it.
