A Sinophile or a Chinophile is a person who demonstrates a strong interest and love for Chinese culture or its people. It is also commonly used to describe those knowledgeable of Chinese history and culture (such as scholars and students), non-native Chinese language speakers, pro-Chinese politicians, and people perceived as having a strong interest in any of the above.

[What follows is the text of a talk I gave in two different contexts last week, as "Reconstitute the World: Machine-Reading Archives of Mass Extinction." First, I opened the summer lecture series at the University of Virginia's Rare Book School, where I'm privileged to be a faculty member and supporter. Next, I closed the first week of the 2018 Digital Humanities Summer Institute at the ...

The Library of Alexandria, in Egypt, was the largest and most significant great library of the ancient world. It flourished under the patronage of the Ptolemaic dynasty and functioned as a major center of scholarship from its construction in the 3rd century BC until the Roman conquest of Egypt in 30 BC. The library was conceived and opened either during the reign of Ptolemy I Soter (323-283 ...

Read an Excerpt from Tar for Mortar Here!. Tar for Mortar offers an in-depth exploration of one of literature's greatest tricksters, Jorge Luis Borges. His short story "The Library of Babel" is a signature exemplar of this playfulness, though not merely for the inverted world it imagines, where a library thought to contain all possible permutations of all letters and words and books is ...
